

Situational Ethics

Situational ethics takes into account the particular context of an act when evaluating it ethically, rather than judging it according to absolute moral standards.

Situational Ethics

For the situationalist there are no rules - none at all...circumstances alter rules and principles... all laws and rules and principles and ideals and norms, are only contingent, only valid if they happen to serve love in any situation...

Situational Ethics Matthew 12:1-8

the Christian chooses what he believes to be the demands of love in the present situation... The new morality, situation ethics declares that anything and everything is right or wrong, according to the situation.” - Joseph Fletcher

Jesus' disciples did not sin when they picked the heads of grain.

The sins of others do not give us free pass to sin.

Sin is never acceptable in God's sight.
